Negin Rezaie

This Takes Space

This Takes Space is a signal-orange inflatable that stages the tension between fragility and defiance. Rooted in The Library of Civil Disobedience, it activates the politics of bodies in space: to enter, to press, to occupy is already resistance. Each appearance transforms its site into a field of negotiation, where sound, movement, and audience interaction inscribe new forms of dissent. In this performance, Negin Rezaie and sound and performance artist Rozina Pátkai interact with the architecture and the audience through electronic sound and embodied gestures. The installation itself—visualized by Mattéo Lacoste and Riin Maide at 2024 from Mattéo Lacoste and Negin Rezaie's conceptual framework moves, expands, and resists, while the audience is invited not only to observe but to participate, their responses becoming part of the work.

MUK goes OWA

The Music and Arts Private University of the City of Vienna (MUK) will be relocating to the Otto Wagner Areal as a key tenant – and is opening its doors to the public for the first time.

At Pavilion 10, the project team will offer insights into the newly adapted spaces of the future campus. To give visitors a taste of MUK's artistic spirit, there will be live music performed hourly by MUK students. The Music and Arts Private University of the City of Vienna (MUK) is the only university owned by the City of Vienna. Students from over 60 countries receive high-quality, affordable artistic, academic, and arts education training in the fields of music, dance, drama, and voice at the faculties of Music and Performing Arts.

Starting in the 2030/31 academic year, MUK is set to move into the Otto Wagner Areal.

TIME*Spaces – Remembering the Past. Shaping the Future

In light of three significant historical anniversaries in 2025 – 80 years since the end of World War II, 70 years since the signing of the Austrian State Treaty, and 30 years of Austria's EU membership – this talk will explore how we remember today, who we want to be as a society, and what kind of future we can build in Europe. Experts from the fields of history, the arts, and politics will come together to discuss the meaning of historical responsibility and the power of cultural narratives. The talk offers an open space for reflection, dialogue, and the development of shared perspectives – across generations and disciplines.

Featuring, among others: Andreas Mailath-Pokorny, Franz Vranitzky, Andras Kranebitter

Guided Tours: "Steinhof During National Socialism"

The site now known as the Otto Wagner Areal was once home to the "Am Steinhof" Psychiatric Hospital, which became a central location for Nazi medical killings during the National Socialist regime. At least 7,500 patients were murdered here. As part of PARALLEL Vienna, the DÖW offers guided tours across the Otto Wagner grounds on Saturday and Sunday at 12:00.

With: Magdalena Bauer (DÖW), Tereza Wagner (DÖW)

Meeting Point: Pavilion V, Otto Wagner Areal, limited capacity (first come, first served)

Nalrregular Archive – Reading / Guided tour

A live reading from Irregular Archive, a collaborative newspaper and installation that gathers voices often left unheard. Texts range from poems and essays to reflections and fragments, exploring memory, media, migration, and the spaces between silence and narration. The reading brings the archive to life, inviting the audience to encounter personal stories, collective experiences, and the textures of language as lived reality.
